

Dear Manager,

I write with gratitude that a member of your staff has registered to take part in supporting Jeans for Genes to raise much needed funds for Children's Medical Research Institute (CMRI).

Currently, 1 in 20 children is born with a birth defect or genetic disease – that's one in every classroom! The money raised for Jeans for Genes will allow our scientists to better understand biological development and how our genes and cells work - all vital knowledge in the fight against childhood disease.

Established in 1958 as Australia's first paediatric research facility, the Institute has pioneered many achievements including the improved survival rates of premature babies, developing microsurgery techniques for newborns, and the introduction of vaccines that protect against a number of childhood diseases.

The work of the Institute has always been enabled by contributions from supporters and communities whom believe in a healthier future for all of our children. We receive no guaranteed government funding.

I hope you will join us and be a supporter of this important work by "dollar matching" the funds that your team-member has raised for Jeans for Genes. Below are details for making a matched-giving donation.

With gratitude and kind regards,

Andrew Kelly
Head of Fundraising, Children's Medical Research Institute
